

Challenge

EMT Solar's new headquarters represented a major milestone for the company, and the furniture needed to match that ambition.

The goal was clear: create a modern, energizing work environment that would help attract and retain a vibrant, motivated workforce in a competitive hiring market. With a firm budget and a hard deadline tied to the office opening, EMT Solar needed a furniture partner who could design, source, and install an entire headquarters without delays or surprises.

EMT Solar, a growing leader in the solar energy industry, was preparing to open a brand-new corporate headquarters — and they wanted the space to reflect exactly where the company was headed. With renewable energy attracting top talent across the country, EMT Solar needed an office that could compete for that talent from the moment candidates walked through the door.

Solution

Boomerang Office Furniture partnered with EMT Solar to design and furnish their new corporate headquarters from the ground up.

Open, Collaborative Workstations

We designed a flexible open-plan layout that encourages collaboration between teams while still giving individual employees the focus space they need to do their best work.

Modern Private Offices

Leadership and specialized roles were given thoughtfully designed private offices that balance professionalism with the same modern aesthetic as the rest of the space.

Energizing, On-Brand Design

Every piece of furniture was selected to reflect EMT Solar's forward-thinking, energy-focused brand — clean lines, modern finishes, and a layout that feels distinctly different from a traditional corporate office.

Full-Service Project Management

From initial design through final installation, Boomerang managed every detail of the project, ensuring the entire headquarters was delivered on budget and ready exactly on schedule for opening day.

Conclusion

By partnering with Boomerang Office Furniture, EMT Solar transformed a blank headquarters into a space that actively reflects their identity as a forward-thinking leader in renewable energy. The project highlights exactly what Boomerang delivers for growing companies: a furniture partner who understands that a new headquarters isn't just square footage — it's a statement about where the company is going, and a tool for attracting the people who will help get it there.

Whether it's a brand-new corporate headquarters, a single office refresh, or a multi-location rollout, Boomerang Office Furniture brings the speed, design expertise, and budget discipline that growing companies need — proving that the right office can be one of the most powerful tools in a company's growth strategy.

Results

The partnership delivered a headquarters that's already paying dividends for EMT Solar's growth:

Complete headquarters furnished — workstations, private offices, and common areas — all delivered as a single coordinated project

100% on-time delivery, with the space fully ready for EMT Solar's opening day with zero delays

Delivered within budget, allowing EMT Solar to invest confidently in their new space without unexpected costs

Leadership reported the new office has become a genuine recruiting advantage, with candidates specifically commenting on the modern, energizing environment during interviews
