

Brandywine

Challenge

The common area lacked the flexibility and comfort modern students expect. Outdated seating discouraged students from staying on campus between classes, and the space did little to support the mix of solo study, group collaboration, and informal social time that defines today's college experience. With a fixed budget and a tight window before the semester began, Penn State Brandywine needed a partner who could move fast without sacrificing quality.

Penn State Brandywine needed to transform an underused common area into a space that actually reflected campus life for their growing student population. With more students choosing to study, socialize, and collaborate on campus between classes, the existing space wasn't keeping pace with how students actually wanted to use it.

Solution

Boomerang Office Furniture partnered with Penn State Brandywine to completely reimagine the common area as a true hub for student life.

Flexible Lounge Seating

We installed a mix of soft seating and modular lounge furniture designed to support everything from quiet individual study to relaxed group conversation — durable enough for daily high-traffic campus use.

Collaborative Study Tables

New table configurations were added to give students dedicated space for group projects and collaborative work, encouraging the kind of peer-to-peer learning that happens outside the classroom.

Durable, Campus-Ready Materials

Every piece was selected specifically for the demands of a college environment — built to withstand constant use while still feeling welcoming and modern.

Fast, Coordinated Installation

Our team managed the entire delivery and installation process around the university's schedule, ensuring the space was ready in time for students to use it from day one of the semester.

Conclusion

By partnering with Boomerang Office Furniture, Penn State Brandywine turned an overlooked common area into a vibrant, functional space that supports how today's students actually learn, connect, and recharge between classes. The project reflects what Boomerang does best — listening to a client's real needs and delivering furniture solutions that work as hard as the people using them.

Whether it's a university common area, a corporate office, or a public-facing space, Boomerang Office Furniture brings the same standard of speed, quality, and partnership to every project — proving that the right furniture can transform how a space is actually used.

Results

The transformation delivered immediate, measurable impact for the Penn State Brandywine community:

40+ pieces of furniture installed across the common area, creating distinct zones for study, collaboration, and relaxation

Student usage of the space increased significantly, with the common area becoming one of the most active gathering points on campus

Zero delays — the project was completed on time and ready before the semester deadline

Campus administrators praised the transformation as a space that "finally matches how students actually want to use it"
