

O'Brien, Belland & Bushinsky Law

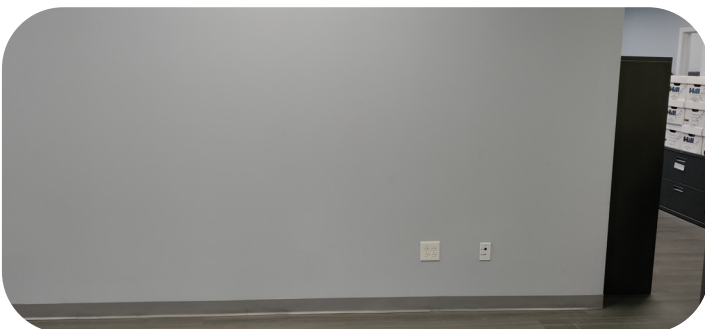

Challenge

The firm's existing layout had reached its limit. Every office and workstation was occupied, and adding new attorneys meant they needed more private space for confidential meetings, focused work, and client discussions.

Traditional construction wasn't a viable option—it would require permits, downtime, and a significant budget. The firm wanted a faster, more flexible solution that maintained a professional, cohesive look while preserving natural light and openness.

O'Brien, Belland & Bushinsky, a respected regional law firm, found themselves running out of office space as their team continued to expand. With every room already in use, the partners needed a creative, cost-effective way to add private offices within their existing suite—without resorting to costly construction, lengthy permits, or major disruption to daily operations.

Solution

Boomerang Office Furniture designed and installed two panel-enclosed offices that seamlessly blended into the firm's existing layout—creating the privacy and professionalism of traditional offices without the cost or disruption of construction.

Panel-Enclosed Offices:

We used a high-quality panel system with fabric panels below for privacy and glass panels above to maintain light and visibility throughout the space.

Lockable Doors:

Each office was fitted with a real door that closes and locks, ensuring attorneys could hold confidential meetings without interruption.

Professional Aesthetic:

The materials and finishes were chosen to match the firm's existing décor, creating a clean, cohesive environment that felt like a natural extension of their original layout.

Quick, Non-Invasive Installation:

The entire project was completed with no construction permits, minimal downtime, and zero interference with the firm's daily operations.

Conclusion

By partnering with Boomerang Office Furniture, O'Brien, Belland & Bushinsky Law transformed unused floor space into two functional, private offices—without the cost, downtime, or complications of traditional construction.

Whether you're a law firm, corporate office, or professional suite, Boomerang provides custom, construction-free workspace solutions that adapt to your needs and grow with your business.

Results

The new offices immediately improved space utilization and workflow across the firm:

Two fully private, enclosed offices created within the existing suite

Seamless integration of design and functionality—professional look, modern feel

No construction, no permits, and no disruption to business operations

The partners and staff were "delighted with the result," praising the speed and quality of the installation
